Home and Condo Defects - Thomas Miller 2021-07-06

A home or condo is the largest investment most people make in a lifetime, but it is more than just an investment. To nearly everyone, a home is where you raise your children, build a life, and attempt to fulfill the American dream. To many, the American dream turns into a nightmare when, after years of saving for a down payment, buyers discover their newly purchased home is filled with defects like leaky roofs and windows, cracked walls and foundations, flooding, or an entire building is settling and sinking. Luckily, laws addressing faulty construction have evolved from the old caveat emptor (let the buyer beware). Today’s laws include numerous ways for consumers to recover losses caused by construction defects in both residential property and commercial buildings.
